THE WORLD WE WANT

"Whatever sort of world you want, it's up to you to build it," writes a soldier. Our soldiers are fighting to save us from the wrong kind of world. It's up to us to see that they—and we—get the right kind.

But what sort of world do we want? Why is it up to us to build it? Why can't we leave all that to statesmen after the war?

Most of us agree that we want a free world. The victory of our armies and plans of our statesmen can preserve our independence as a nation. But whether we are a free nation—made up of free men and women—is still and always will be up to us as individuals.

Free men are those who don't have to be told to do everything. They shoulder the responsibilities of life and nation of their own free will. But individuals, easily grow tired of carrying responsibility. They are tempted to give over to any and all authorities who offer to lift responsibility from them. They are willing to swap liberty for comfort and they thus soon find themselves regimented to the Right.

Even those who love liberty can get too easily absorbed in using it to their own ends. Preoccupied with private interests, they grow blind to the scheming of subversive minorities.

spring of our economics and the center of our family life, then we can build the world we want—a God-inspired world of freedom.

MEN COMING BACK

Thousands of men who have spent two and three years in the armed forces have returned to civilian life in the last few months. Many of them are looking for work for the first time and many more are looking for new opportunities in other jobs. After the upheaval of war the old job often isn't interesting or exciting enough. They want new fields to conquer.

The adjustment is more than just a change of routine; it is an adjustment of loyalty and responsibility. Their primary loyalty has been to the branch of the service they served in, their responsibility to friends in it. They have been part of a large organization that was essential to the country. Now they are plain "Mister" again, and it isn't quite so easy to see that the country still needs them.

This is where we civilians can help. Many of us see the approaching end of the war as an opportune time to "better ourselves". In many cases we think it is a comparatively simple matter to change to another job and often our qualifications fall below the necessary standards. But the true way to add to prestige is to take new responsibilities—just where we are. Through the years of war we have learned that we have a contribution to make to the country. Many of us have worked long hours and hard; we have learned to take more care because no one was around to check up on us; we have learned that how the other fellow feels about his son who's away can affect the way he does his job; and we have learned to carry each other over the tough spots. And, because of the job we have done on the home front, Canada is respected in the world as the fourth industrial power.

If we can continue to give this lead in peace time as we have in war, the returned men will find a seat, not in demanding rights and privileges, or even new opportunities, but in giving all their enthusiasm, initiative and responsibility, which has been so needed for war, to their civilian jobs and through these jobs to the country.

There is such a thing as keeping a garden too trim and neat, say the authorities, that is pulling out every weed and bit of grass and getting rid of these via the garbage pail or a bonfire. The proper way to dispose of such material is to dig it under, where it rots down and becomes incorporated with the soil, adding plant food and moisture absorbing humus. Plowing or digging in the spring and turning all such refuse under is the proper method.

This plowing or digging is also important on its own account. Too much emphasis cannot be laid on preliminary cultivation, either in the vegetable or flower garden. It is much easier to destroy weed growth and especially persistent things like twitch grass and sow thistle by cultivating thoroughly before seeds are sown. Much back-breaking labor in weeding can be saved later on and the mechanical condition of the soil will be improved.

First Plantings
Just as soon as the soil is fit to work, one can and should start a few rows of the hardest vegetables. In this way the garden will pay maximum returns, as with a bit of luck radishes, lettuce, spinach, beets and carrots, if sown at the earliest possible moment, will be ready for eating weeks ahead of those planted later.

This does not mean, of course, that all the vegetable garden should be planted at this time. There are certain hot weather things like tomatoes, corn, beans and the cucumbers, to mention only a few, which will not stand any frost. Then again it is strongly advisable to string out the planting of the early vegetables so that harvesting too may be strung out. One can go on planting carrots, beets, and beans and corn, for instance, until after the first of July in most of Canada and thus create a succession of crops, always at their best and always coming on right up until the first hard autumn frost.

A Kitchen Garden
The old-fashioned kitchen garden had a lot to recommend it. This is the small plot of ground, perhaps only 20 feet square, right at the door. In this position it is handy, especially when one wants to get a few onions or lettuce in a hurry, and it is an amazing thing how much produce one can grow in such a space.

As a matter of fact, for the average smaller gardener it is best to grow beets, beans, lettuce, radish, carrots, etc., in rows close together in a kitchen garden of this kind than in longer rows out in the main garden. The latter, of course, is used for big, bulky crops like corn, potatoes and peas and possibly the main crops of beans, but the heavily planted, often cultivated kitchen plot near the house is an ideal location for the other stuff. Located close to the house, one can often spend odd minutes in cultivating and weeding when it would not be practical to make a trip out into the big garden. Whenever possible this kitchen garden should be located where it can be watered in very dry weather.

Planning will Help When space is extremely limited planning is even more vital because it saves room. In plotting, minimum widths between rows range from 12 inches for narrow things on lettuce, radish, carrots, beets, to 15 inches for beans and spinach, to 18 inches for corn, tomatoes and potatoes.

Alternate quick maturing things like radish, lettuce and spinach with longer maturing or larger growing vegetables such as Swiss chard, beets, carrots and beans. The first named will be up and used before the latter require all the space.

Feldspar, widely used in the ceramics industry, chiefly the glass trade, was produced in Canada last year to the extent of nearly 25,000 tons with a value of $205,000.

BRITISH BACON NEEDS

REQUIRE STRAIGHT SUPPLY

Burns & Co. President warns Canadian farmers may lose valuable export market.

Calgary, April 15.—"If Canada is to safeguard its interests in the British market after the war, the need to meet Britain's present bacon requirements cannot be over-emphasized," according to John Burns, president Burns & Co. Limited. While Canadian exports of bacon and beef reached a war-time high during 1944 marketings have since declined and if the present trend in bacon exports to Britain continues it will lead inevitably to a reduction in the present weekly 4 ounce ration of the British consumer, Mr. Burns states.

With Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, as authority for the statement that while there will be limited demand for grain Canada is assured of a ready export market for pork at present market levels until at least the end of 1946, Mr. Burns states that Canada has so far failed to take full advantage of this market. He warns that unless Canadian producers are prepared to raise a suitable type of hog year in and year out, in numbers that will ensure the shipment of adequate quantities of bacon to Britain weekly throughout the year, there is little hope of Canada retaining that market.

FARMERS HAVE BIG INTEREST

Reporting to shareholders of Burns & Co. Limited on the business of the company during 1944, Mr. Burns states that sales were at a new high of $93,212,746, an increase of 27 per cent over sales of the previous year, while net profit, after income taxes and wartime inventory reserve, was $316,302. A large part of total sales went to the armed forces and for exports but the company made every effort to effect an equitable distribution of its products through retail channels across Canada. Out of every dollar of sales over eighty three cents was paid to Canadian farmers. "The Canadian producer has a deeply rooted interest in the establishment and maintenance of markets for meats and dairy products," Mr. Burns pointed out. "While the packers process and market the product, the function of the producer in providing the supply of raw material is of primary importance and far outweighs any contributions by others in the industry." Only the producers can suggest the present and prospective supply of bacon and "the industry is menaced with a continuous repetition of 'in and out' policy on the part of hog producers. Unless such a practice is checked and a sound production plan is established and maintained, a duplication of many of Canada's agricultural misfortunes cannot be avoided," Mr. Burns warned.

SURVEY IS NEEDED

"Farmers, through their organizations and in co-operation with Federal and Provincial governments, should make a thorough survey of the entire situation. It is reasonable to expect," Mr. Burns continued, "that following the war Britain will purchase foodstuffs from countries that will reciprocate in trade relations, and under such circumstances Canada undoubtedly will have to give consideration to an extension of its reciprocal trade policy to provide a further measure of protection to the export program of its vital agricultural industry."

Plans have been undertaken for the re-establishment of the more than 900 employees of the company who have joined the armed services. It is anticipated that many of these employees will have acquired special training and experience which will fit them for new occupations when they return to the company.

WORDS AND THE WAR

There are certain words that might well, I suggest, be deleted from use by our commentators in describing the advance of our troops. They are: Dashing, Surging, Sweeping, Plunging, Rushing, Racing. The truth is that very seldom, and never for long, does any advance warrant any of these words. "Old soldiers" laugh when they read them. Advances by an army are never greater for long than the speed at which infantry can march and that is at the most twenty miles a day. Tanks and trucks can, it is true, go forward faster for a few hours, but then they have to stop for supplies and until the infantry catch up. Over-optimistic words and descriptions give a false impression to people. Such words make the people think that the war will be ended tomorrow and then many are inclined, because of this feeling, to slacken off their war effort. War actually is a grim, tedious and slow business. Well-trained troops such as the Germans can always put up a fight when they feel inclined to do so. The war will never be won until the enemy is disarmed and behind barbed wire, and no one knows how long that will take. In the meantime, therefore, we must continue to the end of the road, working and producing to the very best of our ability.

THE WORLD OF FOODSTUFFS

Argentina is still unable to ship any considerable quantity of coarse grains to Europe owing to lack of tonnage. Seedings of winter wheat in France are reported far below average, and greatly increased spring plantings will be necessary if wheat requirements for the coming year are to be met by domestic production. It is reported that Canada will send additional food supplies to Europe, and the bulk of it wheat, when shipping can be found. Farmers in the United Kingdom are beginning field work with moisture reserves reported to be satisfactory. The Cuban Cabinet has approved a measure providing for free entry of feeds during the remainder of the year.

Almost anyone can see the need for an airport of some kind near towns or cities with populations of 2,000 or over, but what of villages with populations of 200 or 300?

In Western Canada, the Maritimes and northern parts of Central Canada many a village or settlement of 200 or 300 serves a population of several thousand. Many a prairie newspaper in a village of 300 has a circulation among 1,000 families, which means a coverage of 4,000 to 5,000 people.

Many a Canadian village of 500 or less can boast scores of native sons in uniform, and scarcely a village of that size in Canada is without several young men who have learned to fly in the air force. Supposing just one young air force veteran in one of these small Canadian villages bought himself a light, inexpensive plane. He might be a clerk in the general store most of the time, but on week-ends and on summer evenings, he would give flying instruction to other youngsters who wanted it, to farmers who decided to buy planes of their own.

Speaking of farmers, Canada has thousands who will find the ownership of a small plane a paying proposition after the war.

A city man may have to pay $15 a month for hanger space and drive to the airport before he can take off. But a farmer can build his own hanger on the edge of a pasture field, and instead of losing half a day on a trip to town to get something he needs in a hurry, he can be away and back in a few minutes—if the town or village has an airport.

Or on the other hand Jim, the lad at the garage may get a phone call from Tom Moore 15 miles out of town on a muddy back road that he's just had a fan belt break on his tractor. So Jim takes off and drops a new belt at Tom's farm and is back in a few minutes. The cost? Little more than driving, perhaps less if the way by road was at all circuitous.

Tom might need more serious repair work, perhaps on a combine. Maybe a breakdown threatens to tie up several men. Jim can land in a field, if necessary, bringing spare parts and doing the job on the spot. Or if Jim doesn't happen to own a plane one of his chums will. But neither Tom or Jim or anyone else will own one unless the village has provided a place for them to land.

Perhaps Tom's wife gets an attack of acute appendicitis. Or perhaps he wants his crops dusted. If Tom hasn't got a plane with which to go looking for the doctor, maybe the doctor will be able to fly in his own or somebody else's plane to the sick woman's bedside. And Jim, the garage man may save Tom both time and money by doing a bit of crop dusting during his noon hours. Newspapers too may use or hire light planes after the war. A 12-page newspaper, for instance, can be delivered by air, dropped in small bundles over a 100-mile route for a cent a paper or less.

Canada so far has been growing up in a pre-air age. Canada remains one of the great unsettled land areas of the world. We might easily see another 40,000,000 people here in decades to come. The village of 300 today may be the home town of 3,000 tomorrow, and on how convenient in 1960 to have an air port built in 1946 right in the middle of town.

Hints for the Household

Here is a recipe for cookies that really have what it takes. They store well. They have an unusual blend of flavors. They are real cookies for young or old—and a special treat with a glass of milk, or hot punch. As for coffee "dunkers"—well, you try 'em!

Apple Sauce Cookies

1½ cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon double-acting baking powder
1 teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon ½ teaspoon cloves ½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg, unbeaten 1 cup thick sweetened apple sauce ½ cup raisins
1 cup Grape-Nuts Flakes
Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, soda, salt, and spices, and sift again. Cream shortening, add sugar, and cream well. Add egg and beat well. Add flour, alternately with apple sauce, mixing thoroughly. Add raisins and cereal and blend. Drop from teaspoon on greased baking sheet 2 inches apart. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) 15 minutes, or until done. Makes about 40 cookies.

SOMETHING NEW IN SAUSAGES

Ever stop to figure why the mention of sausage for supper brings spontaneous smiles to the faces of all concerned? That's because sausage, manly though it may be, has a distinct delicious flavor all its own that just talks people into asking for more.

Here are two brand new ways to serve sausage. I predict enthusiastic approval from the whole family!

Cornbread and Little Sausages

½ - 1 pound link sausage
1 egg
2 tablespoons sugar
1½ cups milk
1 cup bran
½ cup cornmeal
3 tablespoons melted shortening 1½ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt 4½ teaspoons baking powder Slimmer sausage for ten minutes in just enough water to cover. Drain and save liquid.
Beat egg; add sugar and milk. Sift in bran, cornmeal and melted, cooled shortening. Sift flour, salt and baking powder together; add to bran mixture, stirring just until liquid and dry ingredients are combined. Turn into greased 9-inch round or square baking pan. Arrange sausage like spokes of wheel in round pan or in rows in square pan so that eight servings may be cut. Bake in moderately hot oven (400°F.) about 30 minutes. Serve at once with cream gravy made of liquid and milk.
Yield: 8 servings (9-inch round or square pan, 2 inches deep).

Bran Apple Fritters with Sausage

1 cup flour
2 teaspoons baking powder 1½ teaspoons salt ½ cup sugar
1 egg
2/3 cup milk
2 teaspoons melted shortening
2/3 cup bran
3 - 4 apples
2 tablespoons powdered sugar 1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 pound link sausages Core and pare apples and slice in ½ inch slices. Combine powdered sugar and lemon juice and pour over apples. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar together. Beat egg slightly; add milk and shortening. Add to dry ingredients; mix until smooth. Sift in bran. Dip apple rings in batter, completely coating. Fry in deep fat (375°F.) until brown (4-6 minutes). Drain on unglazed paper. Serve with link sausages which have been fried in a skillet until brown. Yield: 8 servings.

Serve these gay Apple Stacks to your bridge crowd, buffet supper gathering, or for the children's party. And if you'd like to add a personal touch, write the name of each guest on top of the frosting with the aid of a pastry tube!

Apple Butter Stacks

1 recipe bran pastry 1 cup apple butter
1 4-ounce package cream cheese 1 teaspoon lemon juice Roll bran pastry on floured board to ¼ inch thickness. Cut with large cutter into shaped pieces. Prick and bake in hot oven (450°F.) about 10 minutes or until light brown. Cool. Put together with apple butter between, using a stack of three for each serving. Spread cream cheese softened with lemon juice on top of stack. Serve at once.

Bran Pastry

½ cup bran 1½ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
4 tablespoons cold water, more or less

Roll bran until fine; combine with flour and salt. Cut in shortening. Add water, a little at a time, until dough is moist enough to hold together.

Bran Honey Wafers

½ cup butter or margarine ½ cup brown sugar ¼ cup bran
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon cinnamon ¼ teaspoon cloves ¼ teaspoon all-spice Cream shortening and sugar together for one minute; cool. Crush bran slightly. Sift flour with soda and spices and add to first mixture with the bran; mix thoroughly; chill. Roll dough on floured board to about 1/16 inch thickness. Cut with floured cookie cutter and bake on greased baking sheet in moderate oven (350°F.) about ten minutes. Yield: 8 dozen cookies (2½ inches in diameter).

Served as a mainstay dish, a salad course, or for dessert, can be relied on to glamorize lunch, dinner or party menus every day.

It doesn't take long to border your vegetable salad serving dish with a beautifully symmetrical row of overlapping slices of tomato or hard-boiled egg; to stick sprigs of parsley in the tops of stuffed tomatoes, or to add a garnish of mint leaves to your fruit salad.

Be sure to dry the lettuce thoroughly and to chill it. Don't serve it up until the last minutes if you want it to look crisp and fresh.

Coffee Froth

1 cup evaporated milk ½ teaspoon vanilla
Cinnamon
4 cups freshly made, hot decaffeinated coffee Chill evaporated milk thoroughly. Then whip rapidly until stiff. Add vanilla. Place in serving cups, filling half full. Sprinkle with cinnamon. Fill cups with decaffeinated coffee. Makes 8 servings.

Cooked Salad Dressing

4 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons mustard
2 teaspoons salt

¼ teaspoon paprika
3 tablespoons sugar
8 eggs of 4 egg yolks, well beaten 1½ cups milk (sweet or sour) ¼ cup vinegar
3 tablespoons butter
Combine flour, seasonings and sugar in top of double boiler. Add eggs and mix smooth. Add milk; then add vinegar slowly, mixing well. Place over hot water and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Remove from fire. Add butter. Cook. Makes 2 cups dressing.

• You have reason for just pride if you have done all you could do, on the home front, to support the gallant effort of our men in active service.

If you have denied yourself pleasures and comforts to buy Victory Bonds : : you, too, have played a part in helping your country's war effort.

You have worked and saved and lent your savings to your country. Without this help from you : : and from millions of her citizens, your country could not have maintained the prominent place she now occupies among the freedom-loving nations.

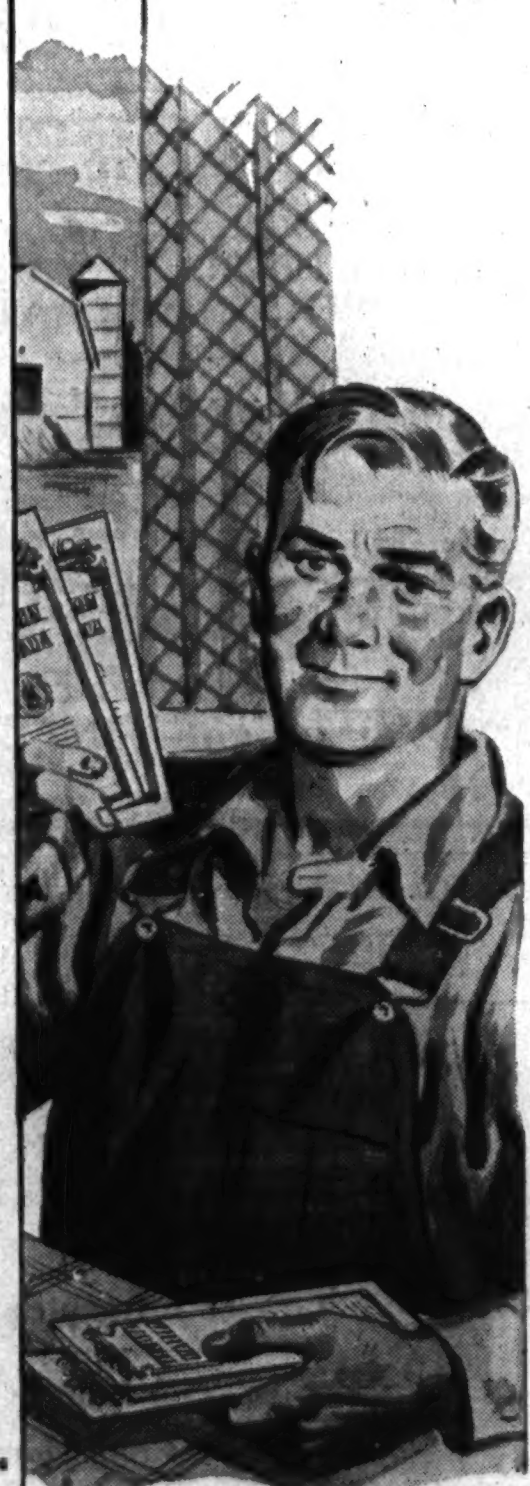

Canada has the use of your savings to help to win victory. (You will have this money to use for your own needs later.)

Perhaps you wish you could have done more. Well, you will be asked to do more. Men who have come back will tell you that there is lots to do yet. Canadians are on active service, on the fighting fronts. More money is needed to support their effort.

You are asked to keep on working and saving and you will be asked to put more savings into Victory Bonds. They are the best investment any Canadian can make; an investment that every Canadian should make.

parents.

The Farmer Grows for Industry

I sometimes wonder how many farmers realize how great their contribution to the war effort is. Of course everyone knows how Canadian farmers have nearly doubled their output of farm products in spite of losing a quarter of their workers during the war; but the food they produce for Canadians at home and in the services abroad, for prisoners of war, and for Britain and the liberated countries is by no means the only war material that comes from farms.

Here are some of the lesser known contributions of the farm to the war effort: alcohol from wheat, machinery belts from hides, parachute cords from flax fibre, air conditioning filter from cow's tail hair, marine engine lubricants from rape seed, in-secticides from tobacco, plastics from oat hulls, plywood glue from blood, path-finder flares from whey, typhus vaccine from eggs, boxes from wheat straw, photographic film from sheep's feet, life jackets from milkweed floss, binder in plaster from cowhair.

And from animal fats? The list of important war supplies which need fats in their production is almost endless. Here are a few: blockbusters, barbed wire, rubber, varnish, lubricating oil, leather, coated cloth and caulking compounds.

Milk is good for more than plain drinking. From milk come the raw materials of products as varied and as indispensable as paint, push buttons, and penicillin!

Department of National War Services

One of the most versatile government departments created by the war is the Department of National War Services, which comprises the Canadian Travel Bureau, the Corps of Canadian Fire-Fighters for service in the United Kingdom, the Directorate of Censorship, the Government Office Economics Control Division, the Citizenship Division, the Prisoners of War Next-of-Kin Division, the Salvage Division, the Voluntary and Auxiliary Services Division, the Women's Voluntary Services Division and the Voluntary War Relief Division. In addition, the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and the National Film Board were by Order in Council early in 1941 placed under the supervision of the Minister of National War Services.

The Corps of Canadian Fire Fighters, recruited at the request of the United Kingdom Government in 1942, has rendered valuable assistance in combating fires in England during bombing raids.

You may be surprised—and, I'm sure, pleased—to hear about the Government Office Economics Control. It was established in 1942 to check on all government requisitions for printing, office equipment and furniture.

The Citizenship Division helps promote better understanding and appreciation between new Canadians of European origin and those of French and British.

The Prisoners of War Next-of-Kin Division administers regulations covering the sending of next-of-kin parcels to our prisoners of war.

The Salvage Division supervises voluntary salvage committees across the Dominion.

The Voluntary and Auxiliary Services Division administers the War Charities Act. It controls all appeals to the Canadian public for funds, and supervises funds made available by the government to the six national auxiliary services which provide comforts and services to the men of the armed forces and the merchant marine.

The Women's Voluntary Services organizes community pools of volunteer women workers for local service.

The Voluntary War Relief is concerned with committees dealing with relief of distressed civilian peoples in Allied countries.

SAILORS' DELIGHT

Aboard a Canadian frigate, H.M.
C.S. "Grou", in Londonderry, Ireland, four eager sailors are digging into a case of clothing articles donated by the Canadian Red Cross. Literally millions of such articles have been despatched by the Red Cross to Canadian tars at home and abroad by the Red Cross since war's beginning. Left to right the seagoing sailors are: A.B. Nell McNevin, Charlottetown; A.B. Leo Wrietz-beck, Amherstburg, Ont.; A.B. Jim Tite, London, Ont.; A.B. Lloyd
Johnston, Ottawa, (R.C.N. Photo)

A FRENCH FAMILY COMES HOME

Home from the hills comes this French family after hearing that the Germans had been driven from their pleasant little village of Buron, northwest of Caen. Well-pictured here is the feeling of utter futility and hopelessness that seized them as they turned into the main street and saw their ruined home, wantonly vandalized by the retreating Germans. This family is only one of millions in Europe's liberated countries to whom the Red Cross must go with help. In this particular village only one home was left intact.

We are planning sixty million jobs to provide a livelihood after the war.
But what are we planning to live for?
